

A recent Barna report revealed the primary motivations people have for attending a Christian small group. Number One was “to know more about Jesus.” Knowing Jesus came in slightly ahead of “knowing more about the Bible” and “understanding faith better.”

If people want to know Jesus, the contemporary church needs to learn to talk about Jesus. Too often, Bible classes and sermons are like watching paint dry. How often are people saying, “Wow! I never saw that before.” Wow, that Jesus is really something! Now I get it!

The problem with declining church attendance may not be “them”—it may be “us!” Attention span seems to be no problem with sports, television, movies, and social media.

A message that tells the Jesus story in fresh ways can be spiritually powerful. Time flies. Listening is easy.

Larry Bowles and Bob Young have attempted to wrestle the Jesus story into life-changing challenges as they share their own lifelong pursuit of Jesus. Everybody needs to know Jesus!

"Knowing Jesus" changes our lives! How will you and your church come to "know Jesus" better? Pray for God's people to rediscover who Jesus is!
